Now, in a daring double-bill performance, De Wet delves deep into the contemporary South African theatre landscape, showcasing two gripping and thought-provoking plays by Oberon Modern Playwrights: "The Fall" and "Fetch."

"The Fall": A Haunting Exploration of Personal Loss

Set against the backdrop of post-apartheid South Africa, "The Fall" is a haunting and introspective play that delves into the profound themes of personal loss, grief, and the struggle to find meaning in the face of adversity.

The play follows the journey of a young woman named Sarah, who is grappling with the sudden and tragic death of her beloved sister. As she navigates the labyrinth of emotions that accompany her loss, Sarah embarks on a surreal and dreamlike quest, encountering a cast of enigmatic characters who both challenge and guide her.

With its lyrical language and haunting imagery, "The Fall" explores the complex and often contradictory nature of grief, inviting audiences to reflect on the ways in which we process and come to terms with loss.

"Fetch": A Dark and Twisted Tale of Supernatural Horror

In stark contrast to the introspective nature of "The Fall," "Fetch" is a dark and twisted tale of supernatural horror that will keep audiences on the edge of their seats.

The play revolves around a group of teenagers who, amidst a night of youthful rebellion, stumble upon a mysterious and ancient curse. As they delve deeper into the realm of the supernatural, they find themselves entangled in a web of dark forces beyond their control.

With its chilling atmosphere, unexpected twists and turns, and pulse-pounding tension, "Fetch" is a gripping exploration of the hidden dangers that lurk within the shadows.

De Wet's Unparalleled Storytelling and Artistic Vision

Under De Wet's masterful direction, both "The Fall" and "Fetch" come to life with an intensity and authenticity that is both captivating and unsettling. His meticulous attention to detail, coupled with his keen eye for powerful performances, ensures that every moment on stage is charged with dramatic weight.
