The orphanage, known as The House in the Cerulean Sea, is home to six extraordinary children: a water-breathing siren, a sparkling faerie, a tree-born boy, a tempestuous witch, an emerald-eyed goblin, and a gnome with a voracious appetite. Under the watchful eye of Miss Eglantine Price, the children thrive, their quirks and differences celebrated.

As Linus spends more time on the island, he begins to question the rigid rules and regulations he's always lived by. He falls in love with the children and their unconventional family, realizing that home is not always a place of blood ties, but a place where love, acceptance, and belonging reside.
